EDITORIAL

For British National Socialists and racial Nationalists, indeed for the racially conscious, racially aware political activists across Europe, the events of recent months are deeply concerning.

Not since the dark days of 1945 has the continent of Europe seen such a mass movement of populations across national borders. However this time those population shifts are not fellow Europeans, they are the invading hordes of the surplus populations of the Middle East, Asia and Africa, taking advantage of the mass exodus of Syrians fleeing the chaos that country has become.

The politicians of the European Union are eagerly following a globalist agenda by allowing hundreds of thousands of migrants and Syrian refugees into Europe. The British government dithers about and has declared its intention to allow several thousand Syrians to settle in the UK. Meanwhile the political Left, the Marxists and their fellow travellers, are doing all they can to undermine national immigration controls and are hell bent on accelerating the creation of a multi-cultural Britain and Western Europe.

IF there was ever an Eleventh Hour situation for our Race and our Nation its now - all racially aware men and women of Britain and our European kindred must stand fast and resist - we are witnessing the Decline of the West. WE must act before it is too late.

THE WEREWOLF COLUMN

A brief reminder of the history of Werwolf

In 1945 as the Third Reich faced total collapse a strategy was put in place to ensure that some form of National Socialist resistance continued should Germany be overrun by the Soviet Union and the Western Allies with their 'democratic' allies in the assorted "liberation/Resistance movements".

The framework for the NS resistance movement was named 'Werwolf' or 'Werewolves' as some Western historians have insisted.

Historians of the period have always focussed on the underground military resistance to the Allied invasion of Germany and Austria, but the continued resistance of National Socialism as part of the Werwolf (or Werewolf) movement also took other forms. Moreover, the Werwolf operations were not confined to within the borders of Germany and Austria, but included the National Socialist movements of other European countries.

Werwolf was not merely a military or para-military concept, but included plans for the political continuation of National Socialism after the expected military defeat of the Third Reich and the anticipated Allied eradication of both National Socialist and Fascist political movements across Europe.

The post-war survival of National Socialism was always part of the Werwolf programme and even as the last elements of military resistance to the Western Allies and the Soviets were making their last stands, Werwolf propaganda actions had begun, underground Werwolf radio transmissions began in the late Spring and early Summer of 1945, as "Radio Sender Werwolf" began to broadcast from makeshift locations.

Those pockets of National Socialist resistance struggled to maintain the political existence of the National Socialist ideology in the decades immediately following the debacle of 1945.

Then in the early 1960's, overt National Socialist organisations began to appear across the world, not only in Europe but also in South Africa and assorted countries of South America.

In 1962 the launch of the World Union of National Socialists by Colin Jordan and LiIncoln Rockwell included input and support from German, Austrian and other Western European National Socialists, survivors of Allied 'de-nazification' and low level members of Werwolf.

The Legacy of Werwolf - National Socialism Today

Now in the second decade of the 21st Century the flame of National Socialism burns in Britain, Europe and other nations of the White World. Although there remains political persecution of National Socialism in many countries, in countries such as Germany and Austria, support for National Socialism is illegal, the ideology lives on. The survival and continuation of National Socialism in the modern world was built upon the shoulders of the original Werwolf and their sacrifices and dedication ensured that survival.

Today, world-wide, we have access to propaganda technology that the original Werewolves could only have dreamt of, and possibilities to generate political influence beyond the make-shift strategies envisaged in the months of total collapse of the NSDAP.

It is no longer the case that National Socialism seeks an underground military solution to its survival, today the strategy is ensuring the advancement and evolution of National Socialism as a modern, functioning political force. Today it is the strategy of building NS organisations that can ensure the survival of the White Race and build active political resistance to all the political and economic forces that seek to advance the internationalist and globalist agendas.

The legacy of the Werwolf is the continuation of National Socialist resistance worldwide!

Broadsword Looks Back at British National Socialist Campaigns of the Past

Above: Sir Oswald Mosley reviews Blackshirt activists gathered for the march to Cable Street in October 1936. There were many British National Socialists in the ranks of the BUF in the 1930's to the point where the movement's title was expanded to the British Union of Fascists and National Socialists.

The year 2016 will see the 80th anniversary of many significant events from the campaigns of the BUF, landmarks in the establishment of British National Socialism.

1936 was also the year that the British State began to formulate the Public Order Act 1936, aimed specifically at curbing disciplined, uniformed and militant British racial Nationalism.

British Movement march through Worcester 1981

Such parades and demonstrations are now heavily filmed by the police and tightly controlled under the Public Order Act 1986.

There are very strict restrictions on the use of banners and placards carrying slogans and speeches are carefully monitored in case 'minorities' are offended by statements made by BM speakers

YOUNG WOLF

You do have what it takes!

Sometimes I look back over my shoulder and can't help but wonder about the progress of the computer age. Yes, it's just something over 20 years of the existence of this interesting World Wide Web, and how did it change over those two decades!

You might think - why bring this subject up? Well, the overall IT knowledge has a big importance in the contemporary National Socialist struggle, an importance only a few really understand.

Those old enough to be around the computers back in 1980s and 1990s can tell you how complicated it was sometimes to get the gear running. No, it was not a tap and click, no face recognition or something we might take for granted today. Old fashioned command line and an avalanche of commands to operate the machine, this was the domain of mainly those computer geeks and loners, spending their time in their bedrooms staring at the blinking computer screens.

With the emergence of aforementioned World Wide Web it was evident that apart its educational/commercial aspect, its ability to disseminate information worldwide has made it - at least in the beginning - a perfect tool for political propaganda - whatever the cause was. And although the majority of those users were on the Left/Liberal side of the political spectrum, there were quite enough sites and servers dedicated to Nationalist, National Socialist and/or general Racial issues.

Of course, the all-seeing eye of the Big Brother has quickly recognized the threat and from the very first days of the WWW the censorship was always present, but the sheer will and persistence of the activists make this an ongoing battle. One page shut down, another one emerges, even for a short while, this game of cat and mouse will probably last for some time to come.

You might say - hey, this is perfect, I am sure we are using it to its utmost!!! Well, I hate to disappoint you, my dear friend, but we are not.

Back in the days it obviously took a knowledge of some programming language to make a page, editing pictures in the early editors could be a task sometimes, but some of us has done it. But as the technology and knowledge of the IT spreads, it seems to me that we, as National Socialists, are slowly losing the information battle on the Internet.

It is obviously impossible to ask those of older generation to master those various gadgets and tools today's technology is offering. Those older comrades are street fighters, blue collar workmen, those guys you call when you need help to move or repair a broken sink - and that is what they are great at! It is up to you, my dear young readers, to step up and report for duty!

We don't need to argue about almost everyone having some smartphone, tablet, laptop or desktop computer now. One would look quite weird without it, isn't that right? But ask yourself, what are you doing with your gadgets?

From what I could observe, the more advanced we are in the sense of technology, the less we use it. I can't count how many times people can't even think of use the Internet of finding the information they need... And believe me, you can find basically everything there, no matter what. And how many times the answer to the question posed is simply: "Have you tried to Google it?" with the perplexed look on the face of the inquiring person like "how come I haven't thought about that myself?" Well, the computer knowledge quite eroded during those 20 years.

Facebook, Twitter, Youtube, Instagram. And for majority of today's youth that's about it. OK, the majority of population probably doesn't need anything more, but for us, as political soldiers and the leaders of the future, we need to make sure we are using everything in our disposal to promote our values and ideas to the general population.

I know many times the hindrance to progress is disbelief in oneself. You know, the feeling of "I'm no good, I can't do anything" kind of a thought. Well, there is good news, folks! You do have what it takes, and it might be within your reach!

Just think about it for a second - instead of filming your silly drunken friend on a Saturday night with your latest type of a smartphone, why don't you make some video you can use to spread some political message with? With a help of some video editors readily available on the Internet and video service as Youtube (or, for more explicit NS/racial propaganda TruTube), you can have your video up and running in virtually no time! Isn't that time to dust off some computer graphics knowledge or to learn something new? You can be sure, it would not only help our Movement with spreading its message, it could also land you a new career, one never knows!

Or maybe you are a dedicated writer, but you haven't published anything yet? Time to get in touch with Broadword office! We are all troubled by the same problems we see and face everyday and you can help to voice them - and more importantly solutions to them - to the Broadword audience. The only thing necessary is to actually start to do it!

Did you ever look at some webpage and think - I would like to know how to build one!? Glad you said that - because you can! Static (you know, those HTML pages of old) or dynamic (modern style, with various widgets, comments and social interactions available) pages are not scarily complicated anymore? With availability and simplicity of blogging systems as Wordpress or Joomla! and literally thousands of themes readily available to suit your needs, the only thing you need is some creativity of yours! And I can't stress enough how great help to our Cause such a knowledge is!

BE CAREFUL WHAT YOU ARE LOOKING FOR!!!

With all being written in the article above, there is one important thing. As you know, Internet was never free from prying eyes, spying and government control. And being not the kind of political activists our politicians love, National Socialists can't complain about the lack of interest from various government agencies and secret services around the world.

Therefore, don't be stupid and don't put yourself into risk when not necessary. Of course, depending on the laws of any particular country, you can be persecuted just for stating the obvious truth, but more so if you try to get off Internet some information our powers that be deem dangerous. Things and e-books like "Anarchist Cookbook" and similar might sound like a funny stuff to read, but truth is, they can actually get you a prison sentence. And that's not funny at all. Avoid that by not engaging in such activities - you are monitored and there is not much we can do about it, unfortunately.

BE SMART AND SAFE!

London on LONDON

A National Socialist View of Life in Britain's Capital City
The Struggle for survival of White British Londoners in the swamp of multi-racial chaos and enforced "Diversity" that has taken over Greater London
by Broadsword correspondent Ed London

Now that the White British are officially an 'ethnic minority' in London it is even more interesting to see how the 'majority' non-white communities conduct themselves and contribute to the diverse cultural and economic life of Britain's 'First City'.

DID SOMEONE MENTION 'ISLAMAPHOBIA'?

Racial or religious hatred? The great myth of London's wonderful multi-racial harmony and cohesion starts to crumble October 2015 - the internet is buzzing with video footage of the latest example of 'Islamaphobia', an aggressive verbal attack on two Muslim women on London's public transport network.

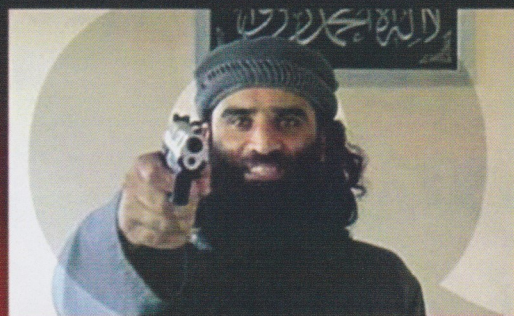

Unfortunately for the anti-racist lobby, the evidence caught on camera does not reveal an evil White racist in action; the individual screaming abuse and threats at the two hijab wearing females is a black woman, Hanane Yakoubi, who lives in West London.

IT'S NOT
IT'S NOT ASYLUM SEEKING.

IT'S AN INVASION!

For once the much acknowledged hostility between different ethnic minority groups (almost never, ever reported by the media) is shown in a rare public exhibition of open hatred.

Those who repeatedly claim that Greater London is a melting-pot of races, ethnic groups, religious and cultural minorities, an example to the rest of the country of racial harmony and diversity, are keen to play such outbursts down as rare instances of tension.

Of course this footage has played into the hands of the pro-Islamic pressure group, "Tell MAMA", which claims to monitor so-called "anti-Muslim attacks".

Desperate to justify its existence, (and to secure government funding), "Tell MAMA" has recently produced a report entitled "We Fear for Our Lives", which claims to show the extent of anti-Muslim attacks across the United Kingdom.

Much quoted are Home Office figures that showed the number of anti-Muslim incidents in 2013 after the murder of Fusilier Lee Rigby by two Islamic jihadists on the streets of Woolwich.

In one breath-taking piece of multi-culturalism in an interview with a national newspaper, Fiyaz Mughal from 'Tell MAMA' stated that, "Women wearing the full face veil will suffer both more incidents and more aggressive incidents, such as people pulling off their veils.....

....People see women in hijabs coming into Europe, so the poor British woman just going to work or to the shops gets it..."

In the opinion of Broadsword, these Muslim woman are not British. They may have been born here, they might have been granted UK citizenship, but they are not truly British. Moreover, if they are wearing the hijab or full face veils they are acting outside British culture and customs, they are declaring adherence to a non-European religion and culture and a rejection of Western European culture and British customs, culture, and styles of dress.

THE GREAT TASK AHEAD

In the wake of the May 2014 local elections this is how one London dwelling non-Aryan Leftist described Britain's capital city...

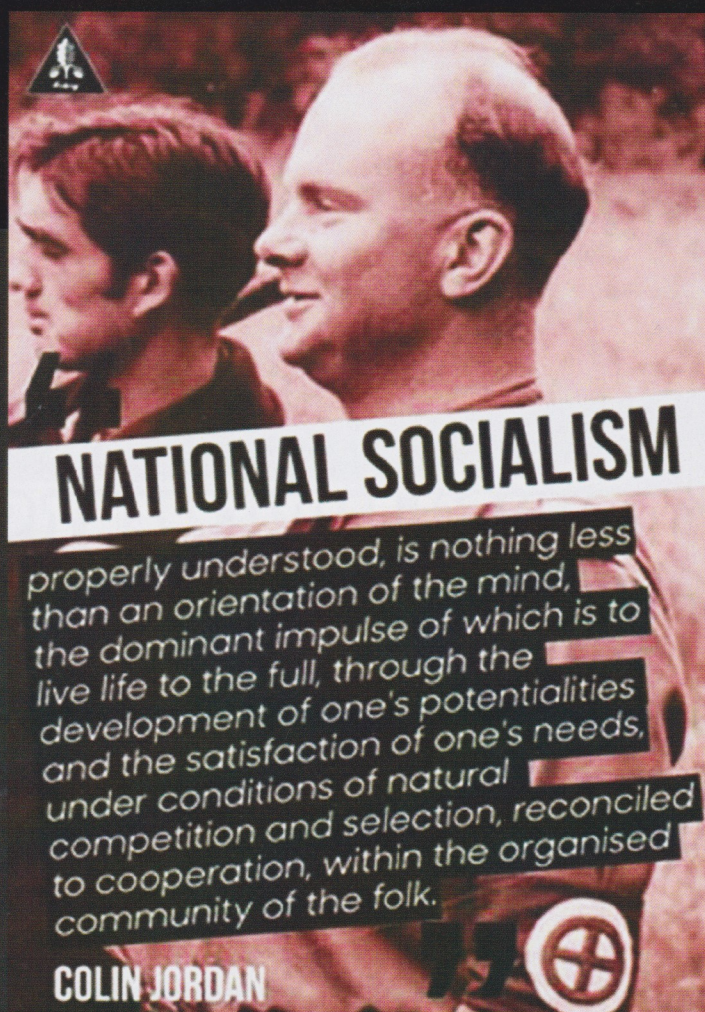

"London's glory is its diversity - 7 million people, 14 faiths and 300 languages - it's the most multi-cultural city in the world."

It is a fact that official statistics show that in 2015 40% of the population of Greater London is non-white.

That is the challenge to all British National Socialists and racial Nationalists - Londonour capital city is temporarily lost to us.

That is not to say that this situation has to be permanent. Before we can take London back we must awaken and reclaim the rest of our country - then, and only then can we begin the final battle and take London back for the White British.

In the meantime, those White British racial activists who through circumstances are forced to live and work in the cosmopolitan ant-heap that is 21st Century London, must consider themselves as part of the resistance in an enemy occupied and controlled city, and they must work to build up their network with their ultimate goal the Day of Liberation

The Activist

In 2016 there are rafts of legal restrictions facing racial Nationalists and National Socialist activists. The passing of the 1936 Public Order Act was the first step by a 'democratic' political establishment to control and eventually squash a militant racial Nationalist organisation, in the 1930's that meant clamping down on Sir Oswald Mosley's British Union of Fascists and Arnold Leese's Imperial Fascist League. The system always claims that this was to remove political uniforms from British streets in order to avoid the threat to public order posed by para-military organisations. However, the banning of political uniforms was only part of the legislation and paved the way for future Race Relations laws and serious restrictions on political gatherings and censorship of speeches and literature on racial grounds.

Those same restrictions were later updated in the 1986 Public Order legislation together with the various Race Relations Acts.

The law is geared to obstruct and prevent overt political opposition that is based on race and racial issues. The laws built around expressions of what the legal profession terms "racial hatred" are very flexible and so-called victims of 'hate crimes' only need to claim that they have been upset or offended by whatever the case is built around.

If it causes 'offence' (real or imagined) it is a "hate crime". The current media and liberal obsession with so-called 'Islamaphobia' has generated a whole new range of potential offences; criticising a Muslim woman for wearing the hijab veil in public is now potentially a 'hate crime'; passing a comment about Asian child-sex groomers in ear-shot of a Pakistani taxi-driver or a Bengali kebab shop worker could be classed as a 'hate crime' if the said Asian is "offended" by the comment.

Of course the whole issue of what is a "Hate Crime" is not helped by the fact that the police are not interested if a White British person is racially verbally abused or insulted by a non-white, but the ethnic minorities are only too aware that if a "hate crime" against them is successfully prosecuted in the courts, they, as victims are eligible for financial compensation. So it pays them to be offended and to report the 'hate crime'.

Note for readers in the USA: The term "Hate Crime" does not just apply to racially motivated acts of violence or destruction of property, it also applies to verbal insults or comments, physical gestures, reported speech (does not have to be directly heard), slogans on banners, posters and stickers, the wording of leaflets (flyers) other publications, even graffiti or painted slogans.

There is no legal right to freedom of speech under British law.

THE PREVENT PROGRAMME

An invention of the Conservative Government allegedly aimed at preventing 'radicalisation' and preserving 'community cohesion'.

The media and assorted government bodies are always keen to present the Prevent programme as being primarily resourced to tackle the 'radicalisation' of young Muslims in the UK, but when examined closely the Prevent strategy also includes targetting White British teenagers and young adults in order to steer them away from becoming involved in "racist" organisations. When British Movement re-launched the BM Youth section as 'Young Wolf', it was not long before certain British Movement activists were receiving visits at their homes by plain clothes police officers who were asking questions about their teenagers being involved in 'Young Wolf', all part of the Prevent agenda.

The irritating part of this is that 'Young Wolf' is entirely legal, as is British Movement, but in democratic, multiracial Britain the authorities do not like the idea that there might be organised political resistance to multiculturalism.

Anti-extremist Prevent - puts Islamic jihadists who plant bombs in public places or conspire to behead British soldiers in the same bracket as White British youngsters who put up 'racist' stickers, or spray paint a slogan outside a mosque. There is no comparison in reality to the levels of hatred here, but the government insists that there is and both are evidence of extremist attitudes.

Movement activists should be aware that often politically hostile local authority workers will seek to damage racial Nationalist groups by bringing expensive legal actions against them.

British Movement stickers on a British street, such a basic activity could be prosecuted under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Section 224 or the Highways Act 1980 for illegal advertising. This also applies to posters and banners with slogans.

In such cases, if the police or the local council officers cannot catch the 'fly-posters' in the act, they will take court action against the organisation producing the offending material. Political activist should be aware that some advertising companies such as Ad-Shelters" will also prosecute organisations for 'stealing' advertising space.

NATIONAL SOCIALISM: "THE GREAT IDEA"

Several years ago a Greek NS activist described National Socialism as the 'Great Idea' - now Broadsword Magazine continues in a new series of articles exploring the meaning and ideology of British National Socialism in the opening decades of the 21st century.

RACE REMAINS THE BEDROCK OF NATIONAL SOCIALISM

National Socialism is a dynamic, constantly developing ideology.

British National

Socialism reflects

the national

Socialist political philosophy as it has developed in the United Kingdom since the immediate post-1945 period.

Changing domestic political, economic and social conditions have impacted on how British National Socialism has been shaped to meet and explain those challenges, but at the heart of that evolving political response remains the constant adherence to Race and Nation.

Race is the key; the future British National Socialist state requires that full British citizenship is only held by those who are of pure White European origins, that is untainted Aryan decent traced back to 1850.

The genetic purity of the White British is essential to the future survival of the British nation. The Marxist response that Britain is a "nation of immigrants" is not an acceptable position on Britain's ethnic makeup.

The truth is that the historic ethnic background to the British as a nation; the Celts, the Picts, the Romans, the Anglo-Saxons, the Vikings, the Normans, the Huguenots, the Irish, all were White Europeans tribes of closely related blood.

Centuries have shaped the genetics of the British folk, and centuries have shaped British culture and traditions. The British character has evolved around the notion of an island nation built up on the bloodlines of the tribes of Europe. Britain is not a nation of immigrants.

The myth of a nation of immigrants is a left-wing position used to excuse the social-engineering and multi-racial imposition of non-Aryan and Third World population on British society.

Race remains crucial to the survival of the White British, and the only political ideology that recognises and cherishes the concept of race and racial separation is National Socialism. The base position for British Movement is the total rejection of a multi-cultural Britain.

The current unacceptable situation which has a multitude of multi-racial communities colonising British towns and cities is viewed as being a temporary situation. A situation which can be reversed at some future date.

It is in the long term interests of Britain's future racial makeup, the survival of the indigenous British, our culture, heritage and traditions, that dictate that the temporary non-White, non-Aryan population must eventually leave Britain.

This is not a policy based on hatred for other races, but a basic requirement for the self-determination and continued existence of the indigenous White British in their ancestral homeland.

"What we must fight for is to safeguard the existence and reproduction of our race and our people, the sustenance of our children and the purity of our blood, the freedom and independence of the fatherland, so that our people may mature for the fulfillment of the mission allotted it by the creator of the universe" - Adolf Hitler

Obituary

BERYL CHEETHAM 1931 - June 2015

A National Socialist Woman

Beryl Cheetham died in Germany after a long period of illness. Although she was born and raised on Merseyside, Beryl had moved to Germany in the 1970's and lived and worked there, staying on in retirement.

As a young woman back in the late 1950's, Beryl was originally politically active in Union Movement but she met Colin Jordan and John Tyndall in 1960 and switched her allegiances to the British National Party.

When Colin Jordan founded the NSM - National Socialist Movement in 1962, Beryl Cheetham was quick to join. She took part in the NSM Summer camp in the Cotswolds in August 1962 and noticeably took part in the subterfuge to smuggle George Lincoln Rockwell out of the camp and helped him avoid the police and the press.

After the internal splits in the NSM, Beryl stepped down but she remained a staunch supporter of Colin Jordan for the rest of her life. She maintained a tight network of NS contacts in Germany, in the UK, and the USA until her death.

BLOOD AND SOIL

The Ideological Roots of 21st Century National Socialism

BLOOD AND SOIL

National Socialism has 'Green' roots and as a political ideology has always included a deep respect for Nature, the environment, forests and wildlife and protection of the countryside, rivers and coastline. It has often been argued that the National Socialists of the 1930's were the first organised political 'Green Movement'.

This was expressed in the National Socialist doctrine of 'Blood and Soil', an expression of respect and reverence for all aspects of environmental and rural issues.

In Britain this 'Green' doctrine was embraced by Sir Oswald Mosley's BUF and was reflected in the writings and speeches of BUF activists Jorian Jenks and the respected author Henry Williamson.

Blood and Soil Today A British Movement Perspective

The British natural environment is under pressure as never before and faces levels of destruction and fragmentation that could permanently erase huge tracts of countryside and send many species of native British wildlife into permanent extinction.

The major political parties who govern (dictate) Britain and create government policy are dominated by metropolitan elites, wealthy urban focussed career politicians who either have no understanding of the natural world or see the countryside and coasts of Britain as a source of production or entertainment ripe for financial exploitation.

Under both Conservative and Labour governments much of Britain's natural environment has been sold off to foreign 'investors', overseas financial interests who see the purchase of large tracts of British farmland, moorland and forests as a source of financial return and have no empathy with the environmental or wildlife value of the areas they control.

In recent years the Conservative government has actively sought to attract Chinese buyers for large British farms and farmland. Once Britain's natural resources, especially our water supplies were controlled by regional utility organisations, over recent years water was 'privatised' and most water companies in the UK are now partially or totally owned and controlled by overseas companies and corporate investors.

Of course the Tories are always keen to put business interests first and have cut back funding on environment and wildlife protection, for Tories profit and share dividends always come first. The Conservatives pretend to oppose regulation and environmental protection of farming and food production as unnecessary and restrictive, but in reality seek to allow methods that pollute waterways, rip out traditional hedgerows and woodland in favour over prairie style mass production fields and seek massive farming subsidies for favoured landowners.

The Labour Party is no better, most Labour Party politicians are totally immersed in urban issues, they are clueless about the countryside and environmental issues being focussed on North London 'think tanks', city centre politics and left-wing equality and diversity agendas.

The average Labour Party 'policy wonks' know nothing about rural issues, the environment, wildlife protection or agriculture.

Way back in the late 1970's, the British Movement National Chairman of the period, Mr Mike McLaughlin gave a speech in the East End of London, where he correctly denounced the "rotating dictatorship of the British political establishment of either Labour or Tory governments" He pointed out that in the future the Labour Party would seek to give Britain away while the Conservatives would seek to sell out Britain and the British people. The only difference between them being that the Tories would try to get the best possible price.

Now as Britain enters 2016 this betrayal of Britain's natural resources and the British countryside is accelerating; the Conservatives want to extend Heathrow airport, allegedly to create jobs and create economic growth, but at the expense of bulldozing tracts of land, building new roads and destroying a number of ancient villages and countless homes. The HS2 rail project will go nationally (with massive foreign financial investment of course); HS2 will bulldoze its way across open countryside, concreting over farmland, destroying ancient woodland, slicing through supposedly protected nature reserves and completely destroying any number of farms and rural homes.

Now the Tories are pushing out 'Fracking' in National Parks and supposedly protected areas of natural importance, all in the interests of profits and their backers in the international energy companies.

Previous environmental protection laws are ignored or re-written in favour of corporate interests and the Conservative pursuit of profit and share-holder dividends.

The winter floods at the end of 2015 have revealed the uncaring nature of Conservative cuts and environmental policies. Conservative government legislation has favoured major landowners and has interfered in flood protection and river management in their interest.

The threats posed to Britain's landscape, rivers, woodland, wildlife and countryside would fill volumes because the main political parties have ideological understanding of Nature or Nature's laws.

National Socialism by contrast is built on Blood and Soil..

RACIST!

The political Left now dominate the argument on all matters concerning race, ethnicity and immigration.

The ordinary British people are now afraid to speak out in case they are labelled as being 'racist'.

For any White British person to be labelled as a 'racist' in their place of work, or place of education is a virtual guarantee of suspension from work, loss of employment, expulsion from school, college or training course. The odds are heavily stacked against the White British worker or student expressing any kind of opinion on immigration, race or the failings of members of other ethnic groups.

Way back in the late 1960's, the opinion shapers and policy makers of the political Left determined that THEY would make the use of "racial language" a social taboo first, and later still a 'criminal offence'.

To that end the forces of so-called 'equality and diversity' have been successful.

Nowhere in the past 50 years has any mainstream political body challenged the neo-liberal, Left-wing agenda on race and ethnicity. The Marxists behind this corrosion of debate and everyday speech knew that it would be a long and slow process, taking decades of pushing their agenda.

Left wing teachers and education policy makers made it a priority to first 'challenge' what they termed "racist attitudes" in class rooms and college placements, and eventually to outlaw what they classed as "unacceptable racist language" in schools and colleges.

Their fellow-travellers in the media and broadcasting quickly followed suit, adding strict censorship of "racist" opinions and a refusal of air-time and newspaper coverage to "racist" political spokesmen or politicians. By the 1990's the campaign had triumphed and with the sledge-hammer clout of the Left within the trade unions and within local authorities, the average White British worker was cowed into silence.

Now in modern Britain the average White British person, especially the ordinary working-class individual is afraid to voice an opinion in case some one in a position of authority criticises them for being "racist".

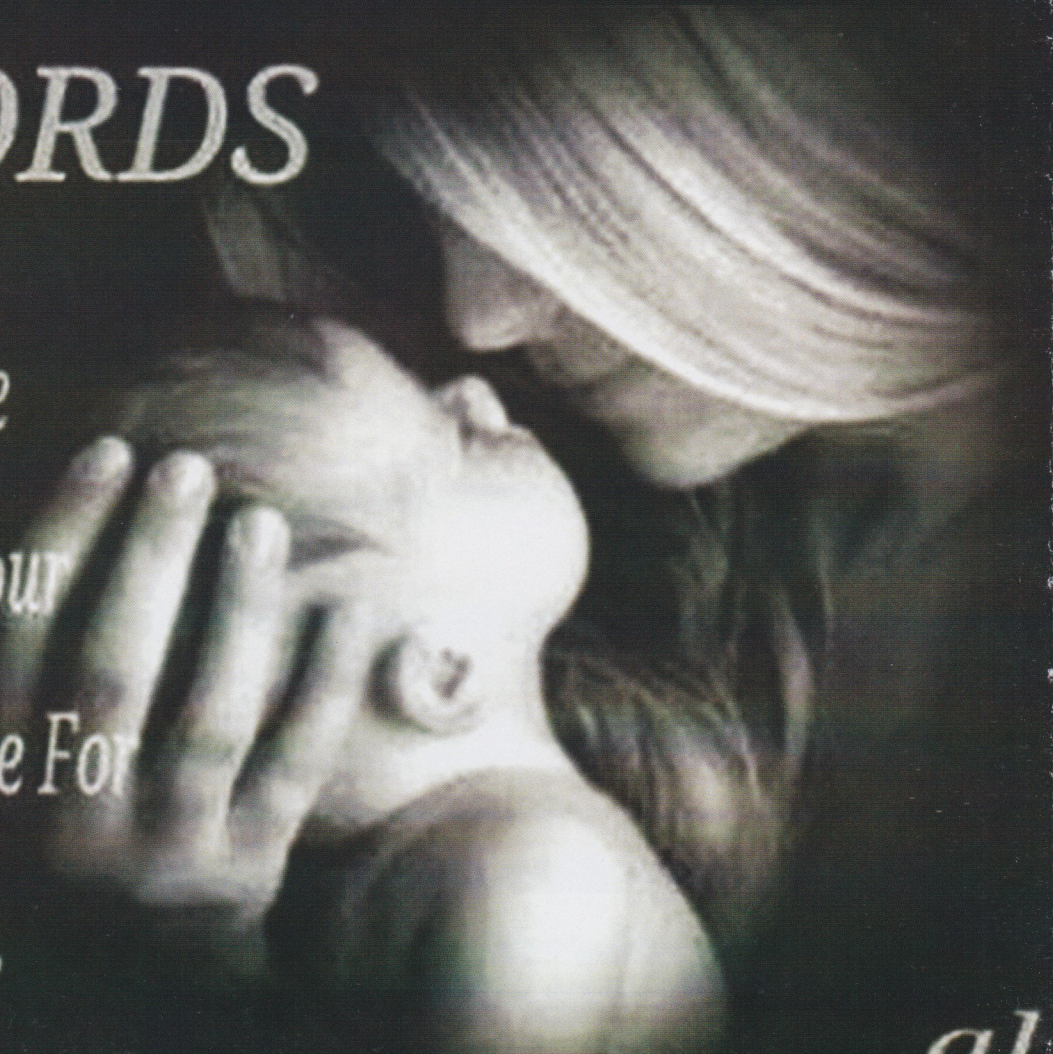

14 WORDS

We Must Secure

The Existence of our people And A Future For White Children.

What constitutes "Racism" is in the mind of those who have been specially trained to identify it or those who are members of an ethnic minority group and can claim to be offended by something that has been said or expressed in print.

All too often in the Britain of 2015, a White British person will glance over their shoulder before stating a criticism of a non-white individual or ethnic group for fear of being over heard by some zealous champion of diversity. All too often they will be warned by a well meaning neighbour, "Be careful what you say, they might call you a 'racist' for saying that."

No matter how true or correct their comment might be. After all, they know that the dice are loaded against them. All it takes is for one Asian or black individual to claim to have been or offended or worse still 'racially abused' by their factual comment and a criminal charge can be brought against the White British individual.

Worse still if the offended ethnic minority individual can claim to be a victim of a 'hate crime'.

This last situation would be laughable if it was not taken so seriously by the Police.

These days even nursery age children and pre-school children can be formally reported for using 'racist' language' or 'inappropriate racial language'.

In recent months a BBC TV reporter visited the town of Rotherham to investigate allegations that Asian taxidrivers were being racially abused by White British customers in the wake of the ongoing Rotherham 'Grooming and Child Sex Exploitation Scandal.' The BBC Look North reporter, who just happened to be Asian himself, walked through the town centre of Rotherham in the company of two Rotherham taxi-drivers of "Pakistani-heritage" as they were described. As this earnest and concerned group walked along, very conveniently a car drove down the street passed them and an unidentified passenger shouted out some comment at them, it sounded vaguely like "Groomer!". The suitably shocked reporter immediately turned to the two Asians and in all seriousness asked them on camera, "How does it feel to have just been the victim of a hate crime?"

A single shouted word was suddenly elevated to the status of a 'Hate Crime' How far down the road to an Orwellian 1984 situation has 21st Century Britain become when a single word becomes a crime?

Given that the Rotherham case was in all likelihood staged for the camera, the implied situation is a warning to all right-minded British people that the law is loaded against them.

As British National Socialists the time has come to put a brake on this Marxist manipulation of our both our everyday language and our laws. The time has come to fight back and reclaim our right to speak freely.

This is not about verbal abuse or expressions of hatred - it is about free speech and personal opinion.

A former 'Wigger' writes to White Voice

By Gregory Cooper

#T57324, SRCI, 5850 E. Milton Rd., Milton, Florida 32583

Dear Karl:

First and foremost, I hope all is well with you and everyone at RNPA. We need more White men and women in this world such as yourself who go above and beyond in awakening White people to a racially conscious state of mind and exposing the setbacks imposed on our people by those of other races.

I came across a copy of White Voice and a few of your leaflets and was very impressed with what I read. Thank you Karl and everyone at RNPA for all that you doing for our people. The fact that you stand and fight for our people in an appropriate manner to be a white and of the same race and culture such as yourselves. You all are true heroes/heroines and from a "hardened convict" I salute you! :)

I especially like the White Christmas Drive leaflet. I am not a Christian, however I feel that Christmas is an American tradition and I believe all White children should be able to celebrate it and have gifts and food. I would love to donate it to you for the children and movement, however you say that you do not accept checks and I am afraid that is only way that I can send it out of my account. I would also like to purchase a subscription to White Voice, however I face the same problem. Is there any way around this? (Editor: any checks or money orders should be made payable to: Karl Hand, P.O.Box 1281, Lockport, NY 14095. If it is for the White Christmas Drive, it should be earmarked as such or otherwise it will be put in our general fund.) With that said, I would like to tell you my story. It will be too long to publish in the 'Incoming' section, but I think that maybe you can use it for something. It is unique in that I have never read an article in any pro=White propaganda that gives the reader an 'inside view' of how blacks and Hispanics live and their ways of thinking. Their culture will never be able to assimilate with ours and eventually if things do not change, our culture will be taken over by theirs and we, as a first world people, will cease to exist. My story will coincide with pro-White propagandists and be a voice against liberals who defend and excuse blacks and Hispanics for their actions and ways of life due to 'racism'. My story will answer the questions of whites who may ask, "Well, how does Karl know how it truly is for minorities or how does he know this or that about blacks and hispanics if he has never walked in their shoes", and I am assuming that you haven't.

I have lived amongst blacks and hispanics my entire life, in and out of prison. I was what racially conscious White men call a "wigger". The difference between myself and a "wigger" is that I was not posing. I had absorbed the black/hispanic/urban culture and it became me. I was totally pro-minority because society brainwashed me to think that all races are equal and that these people of other races were my friends, who just wanted to be treated as so. Now pro-white, I will explain why.

I was born and raised in Tampa, Florida, known this way as "Trigger City" and "the Gunshine State". I've spent some time in Indiana, but outside of that, I had no White friends. I did not know what racism was as far as living and experiencing it until I came to prison. Blacks and hispanics call White people "crackers", but I was so brainwashed I didn't know that the word "cracker" was a racial slur against my own kind. Black and hispanics speak this word freely, without any fear, unlike White people who, for the most part, seem to be petrified to use terms such as "nigger" and "spic", out of fear of being labeled a "racist" or simply out of fear of repercussions doled out by the minorities.

Not once do I ever remember any of my black/hispanic friends being discriminated against or treated with racism by Whites. Nor do I ever recall them telling me that they had ever been treated any differently by Whites while I might not have been around (This goes against what Liberals say about minorities participating in crime and living the lifestyle that they do because of 'racism' and 'discrimination').

I had a good 30 friends in Tampa of black/hispanic races and every single male friend that I had, even some of the females, deliberately broke the law, sometimes every day, days at a time. Most of these crimes were violent including assaults, car jackings, armed home invasions, kidnappings and even murder. You name it, they did it, and are probably still doing it if they aren't in prison.

Growing up around these people, it was only natural that I began to imitate the black/hispanic cultures and their ways of life. When I say "ways of life", I am referring to crime. They do not believe that committing crime is wrong, in their view, it is more of a game to them. It's all about beating the "crackers" (Police) and living how they want to live, which is oblivious to laws. They committed crimes as simply and as casually as eating a sandwich.

As I look back on things, in the beginning more so than towards the end, I always felt guilty after breaking the law. I always felt sorry and ashamed for what I had done. Of course, I could never show those emotions because I wanted to fit in.

I now realize that committing those same crimes as my "friends", I differed from them, because of those feelings of guilt were brought on by my knowing of what was right and what was wrong. This, even though I was absorbing their culture more and more everyday.

You see, a lot of White people from my generation on up, I am now 27 years old, have been taught by society that being White isn't cool, that it is something to be ashamed of. I can't tell you how many White people I've met since being incarcerated, my age or younger, who are blatantly anti-White, and claim their "ethnicity" to be their race, instead of claiming that they are Caucasian. They were, and are taught, still, to be ashamed of their "whiteness".

I always remember seeing white women with black men on TV promoting miscegenation and I always thought that imitating them was what I was supposed to do for White women to like me. I never remember there being tough, athletic White men on the TV to idolize, it was always some black gangster, rapper or athlete. After seeing that so much, it was just another boost in wanting to be more like people of another race. I thought miscegenation was cool and fooled around with a couple of black girls and quite a few hispanics. Many of my family members practice miscegenation. I have two autns who have mixed B/W children. My sister has children with a mulatto man and even my mother has finally been brainwashed so much that she is now dating a mulatto man. (Thanks to the White liberals and the Jewish controlled media).

I've been incarcerated since the age of 19, but it wasn't until I was about 23 that I began to evaluate my life, in and out of prison, and see things for what they truly are. My street 'friends', never did anything but use me on the streets. If not for my hands, aggressiveness, and ability to hold my own in neighborhood brawls, then for money, a ride, or a place to crash. Not once have I heard from any of those "friends" since I've been incarcerated. What "put the icing on the cake" for me in becoming pro-White was being able to observe blacks and hispanics in prison and realize that our peoples are nothing alike. Coming into the system I had the same mentality that I left the streets with: "These people of other races were equal to me" and I attempted to treat them with kindness. That was a big mistake. For example, I would share my canteen with these people out of generosity, but as soon as I didn't have stuff to give them, it led to problems and these people didn't act friendly anymore. Which, in turn, led me to put my hands on them. When they realized that I wasn't a "cracker" that they could use, they began to avoid me, because to beat down by a White man is a disgrace to them. :)

I once got a new roommate who was black and everyone in the dorm told me that the guy was "no good". Me being me, I gave him the benefit of the doubt and treated him with kindness.

After about a week of me treating the guy like a human being, he took my kindness for weakness, I suppose, and he asked me if I was gay because he was trying to get some "head". I've never beaten a human being as bad as that guy!

Blacks in prison are the majority and when this happens they are no longer friendly. Prison is hard on your average White guy. It is not for the weak. You're either a predator or you're prey. There is an in between, but it is only when you're tougher than the predators. Here at Santa Rosa, a big black inmate with a life sentence was housed in a cell with a little White guy who only had a few years. They found George Zimmerman innocent of murdering Trayvon Martin and the black guy beat and raped the White guy to death because of the verdict.

Most of the things that I'm going to tell you about blacks in prison, applies to hispanics as well, but on a lower level. The lighter the hispanic, the more morals they appear to have. I am referring to Puerto Ricans, Cubans, Dominicans, etc.. Most Mexicans are pretty bad too.

Black teens' behaviour - just in case you don't know...and yes, they all blame it on alleged "discrimination" and "racism"!

American blacks are by far the worst of them all. Most of them lack intelligence and do absolutely nothing to better themselves educationally. The majority of their conversations with each other consists of topics such as selling dope to White people, big rims and gold chains, and how many "hoes" they are going to impregnate. (The word "hoes" refers to women of any race, but many reference the word to White women in particular). Many of them hide around corners or objects and masturbate while they stare at female staff members. Some of them stare at the weaker White guys in the shower and do the same, or worse! Blacks constantly speak about how they hate the White man, and how they love having sex with White women out of hatred for the White man because they know it defiles them in our eyes. Even the mulattos who were raised by their White mothers will come to prison and run with the blacks, proclaiming how much they dislike Whites. I know a couple of mulattos who dislike blacks and can't stand their ways. After living with mulattos in close quarters, I can see how racially confused they are. My question to White people is: "Why would you put your children through that confused state their entire lives?"

Blacks do not see themselves as equal to us. They feel superior. One of their most popular sayings is that "a Cracker ain't never beat them at nothing." Before coming to prison, I never hated any race of people. I literally can not stand blacks now, and it is their fault! I believe that the "Hip-Hop" culture is destroying our White youth because it is flashy and enticing. The flashiness blinds them and they slowly absorb the criminality that comes with the culture. We need to somehow stop this process before it destroys more White kids like it did me.

To say that every single person of other race are "bad" people would be untrue, however, notice that all the "good" blacks and hispanics imitate White culture and are a minority to the rest of their race.

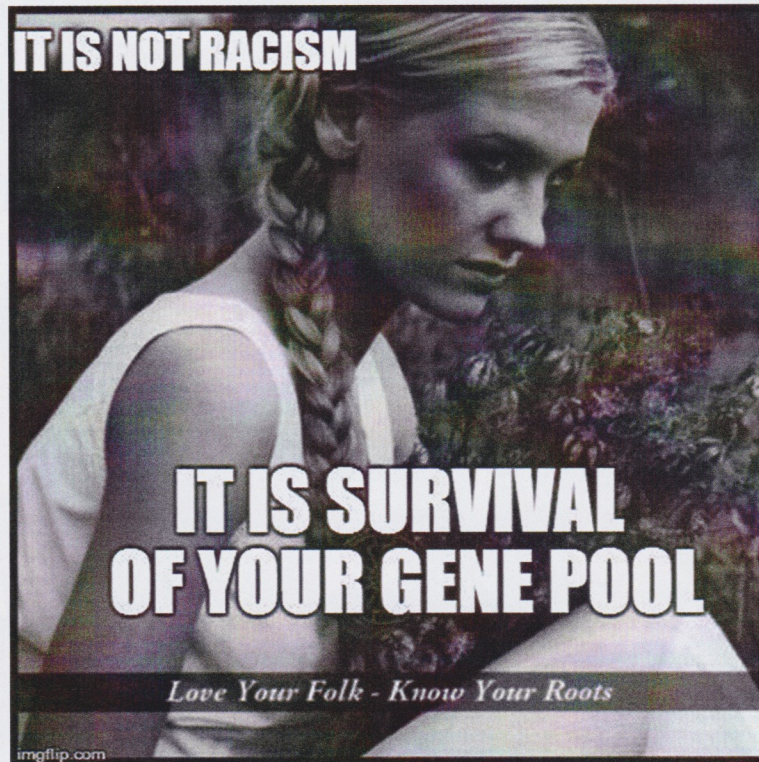

Well, this letter is long enough. I guess I'd be lucky if you even get a chance to read it. I wish you had all the time in the world as I'd love to tell you of my family's experiences on how all the White women in my family are treated like dogs by the black men they are with. Some of the things they have done to my family would make you sick.

Count me as a racially confused kid who was transformed into a proud White man due to the guidance from people like you, Karl. Thank you!

Sincerely,

Gregory Cooper

EDITOR: This letter was actually much longer, but space prohibited what we could print. Plus, some things were simply bit too graphic.

Now, as for you Gregory Cooper, I have this to say: There are crimes and there are punishments. You are paying for your crime, but, there also sins and there must be penance. You have taken the first step here, but more needs to be done. I charge you with becoming a tutor, and mentor for those young Whites who come into your domain while incarcerated. Do this well, stand tall and stay strong.

Dear Broadsword

Immigration is out of control !

Recent statistics indicate a dramatic increase in the UK's population, especially in London and the South-East, which is almost entirely due to immigrant families already settled here. This is having a detrimental impact on the NHS, housing, schools and transport infrastructure. There is a serious shortage of housing and an increase in homelessness; in an increasing number of London schools a majority of pupils either do not speak English or English is their second language; city roads are grid-locked and trains are overcrowded.

Meanwhile, events during recent months at Calais and other Channel ports, like Harwich and Felixstowe, as well as mass arrivals in Mediterranean countries, confirm that Europe is being swamped by the dregs of the Third World. Many of whom are heading for the UK.

There are millions of displaced people on the move from war zones and conflicts, together with economic migrants from Africa, the Middle East, Afghanistan and other Asian countries, all heading for Europe.

It is clear that the 'old gang' of Establishment politicians in the UK and the rest of the European Union have no idea how to deal with this problem, and there is a hint of panic amongst some of the political elite.

Despite decades of brain-washing about the so-called benefits of immigration, multi-racialism and multi-culturalism, the politicians fear an increase in anti-immigrant feeling.

British Movement must seize the opportunity to exploit this and emphasise our message that BM provides a radical alternative solution, and only a National Socialist government will solve the immigration problem and build an Aryan, folkish society in the United Kingdom.

WE WILL HAVE OUR COUNTRY BACK !

Dear Broadsword,

The EU referendum will be a farce! Prime Minister Cameron has begun his negotiations with other EU leaders and EU officials in preparation for the much promised referendum on Britain's membership of the European Union. However, it is very unlikely that he will be able to negotiate any worthwhile new terms or reforms because it will be impossible to obtain the support of the other 27 member states for any treaty changes.

In any event it is clear that Cameron, as well as many of the Westminster MP's of all parties, wish to remain in the EU at all costs.

Thus the campaign to remain in the EU (the YES vote) will be overwhelming. It will have major financial support from big business, especially multi-national companies, and there will be a lot of scaremongering propaganda from the BBC and most of the rest of the British media. The exceptions being one or two Euro-sceptic newspapers.

Britain must leave the EU and escape the burdens of its 'stalinist' bureaucracy, as well as being able to escape the shackles of EU regulations and directives on Human Rights legislation.

I believe that only a BM government will achieve a total withdrawal from the EU, as well as disassociation from other internationalist organisations that threaten our race and heritage. This does not mean that we are anti-European. We must replace the EU with a federation of NS states throughout Europe. So it is important that BM builds up good relations with other NS organisations across Europe and other parts of the White world.

Hawkwood NS.

Dear Broadsword,

Looking at the news on TV, Sunday Morning August 2015, I see that the Mayor of Liverpool wants to ban a White Man's March, saying that there is no place for it.

Well, that says it all. They can have a pervert 'Gay' march, a Black march, a Muslim march, a communist march or a trade union march, but no march to defend British values and Anglo-Saxon culture.

I can't see why the British Government can't or won't see the problem.

In a couple of years time I will be 80 years of age.

I had an education in a secondary school, but I can see the immigration problem. The government ministers and MP's have supposed to have had university educations, but they can't see the true state of this country and what immigration has done to it.

I was an NF member in the early days, then a BNP member for life, and also a BM member. We all saw this coming years ago, but no one listened to our warnings.

Now Britain is paying the price, and still they won't wake up. In years to come this once proud country will be totally black and Asian and my grandchildren and all the remaining Aryan folk will pay the price for that.

One last thing; the stupid MP's and ministers in 1939 declared war on our Anglo-Saxon cousins the Germans.

I know that this country would be a different place if the Germans had invaded in 1940, but now half the country has black and Asian districts where White folk can't walk at night.

Unless the people act now there will be no future for our children and grandchildren, and our Anglo-Saxon race and culture will fade into history.

'BRITAIN AWAKE!' D. O'D. Essex.

Dear Broadsword

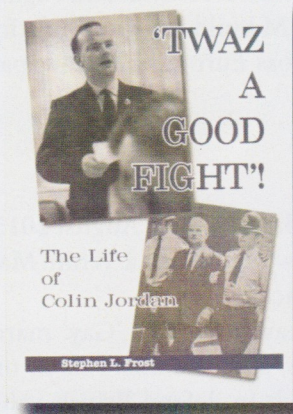

Surely it is more than coincidental that thousands of Muslims have been given the green light to flood into Germany and Austria, The old heartlands of National Socialism!

Colin Jordan loyalist - West Midlands.

'TWAZ A GOOD FIGHT!'

A book review by Thunor

"Anyone who is not attacked, slandered, and calumniated in the Jewish press is no true German, no true National Socialist. The best standard for the value of his sentiments, the reality of his conviction and strength of his will power is the ferocity shown towards him by the enemies of our nation." MEIN KAMPF

If we take the above paragraph as a dictionary definition of a National Socialist, then we may conclude with absolute certainty that Colin Jordan was indeed 'the real deal', not only damnation in the media, the loss of a teaching career, but also jail sentences and police raids/harassment (at Zionist behest) affirming CJ's honour and loyalty right through to his final months.

The author, Steve Frost takes a sympathetic look over this remarkable man's life, his family history, the ideals which moulded the man as well as a detailed overview of the political odyssey which saw the post-war revival of National Socialism in a British context, a banner held aloft by today's BNSM.

Colin Jordan's first real political activity was the distribution of leaflets on the streets exposing the concealed Jewish identity of the prospective Labour parliamentary candidate. From early days CJ was an avowed opponent of democracy, seeing weakness, decadence and the pervasive influence of a certain racial/religious group.

It was a conviction which saw his participation in the original BPP, League of Empire Loyalists, White Defence League, BNP mark 1, right through to the birth of the openly 'Hitlerite' NSM and its successor, British Movement.

Never the petty politician of the "Far-right" with its contemptible "little Englander" mentality, Jordan heard the call of Race beyond our Island Nation, and adherence to an ideology that saw not a fiery end in 1945, but the opening shots in our survival and revival as a folk, that others laced this vision saw discord and division with Colin Jordan maintaining a consistent ideology in sync with the natural order, championed by the National Socialist worldview declaring, "If the creed was right before its military defeat it is no less right since that defeat..."

Of particular interest to the modern activist will be the experiences of the National Socialist Movement (NSM) (1962-1968) with its open use of the Swastika, a London based HQ/bookshop and a rally held in Trafalgar Square, July 1st 1962, declaring "FREE BRITAIN FROM JEWISH CONTROL!" Unthinkable in this day and age, and an event that even then ended in a virtual riot.

And whilst the original Public Order Act was designed to halt the spread and activity of Mosley's BUF in the 1930's, subsequent laws were aimed at Colin Jordan, and designed to derail National Socialism.

The Movement suffered its own internal difficulties. its key members and Leader incarcerated, and from small beginnings, in conjunction with the American Nazi Party's George Lincoln Rockwell, the NSM, in accordance with the pan-Aryanism of its Leader, launched the World Union of National Socialists. All of which ensured that the NSM was seldom out of the headlines, in fact if publicity had been an indication of political strength, then the NSM would have been in a position for government with Colin Jordan as Prime Minister!

The NSM continued the struggle right through to 1968 when a reflective Jordan revamped and relaunched the Movement as a British variant, its Sunwheel insignia in the British colours rather than those of NS Germany. Without doubt CJ and his old comrades had seen that political capital was to have been had by a movement, National Socialist in ideology, yet modern and relevant to Britain facing economic crisis, racial ruination and national extinction on the international altar of EEC membership.

Thus the vigorous campaigning which propelled the NSM into the headlines continued under the BM banner, smaller than the NF, Jordan maintained his ideological approach and the BM managed to "get into the papers" with regular activity designed to excite media attention and capture the public imagination. By the mid-70's age and other factors saw CJ step down from the BM leadership, nonetheless continuing to take what may have been termed a supportive interest. Disputes between CJ and his successor Michael McLaughlin is covered in detail in Chapter 10. Colin Jordan never 'gave up', the last years of his life given over to a philosophical appraisal of an ideology which saw a long life of unbroken service and unrepentant opposition to ZOG and all its manifestations.

Footnote: This reviewer as a young NS activist (circa 1982) purchased a copy of the old NSM magazine from the 1960's era from the British Movement's Shotton office. This edition included an article entitled "Why I am a National Socialist... and why you should be too.." by Colin Jordan. That Steve Frost has included this article as an appendix to this biography concludes as a fitting tribute to its author.

END NOTES

This isn't a "refugee crisis".
It is an invasion.
Deport them all now.

Now more than ever, it is essential that British National Socialists and racial Nationalists motivate themselves into the propaganda campaign against the migrant invasion of Britain and Europe.

The pressure by the globalists, the Left-wing internationalists and the bleeding heart liberals, to allow thousands of so-called 'refugees' into Britain must be opposed.

The majority of those flooding into Europe are not refugees from war, they are economic migrants; these people are seeking a 'better life' at our expense, posing as asylum-seekers and the dispossessed fleeing persecution is the smokescreen behind which a mass migration from Third World poverty is taking place.

British National Socialists and racial Nationalists must use this as an opportunity to force our people to think in terms of race and nationality, to value our own ethnic heritage. We must make them understand that the incoming migrants will not seek to come to this country for a short time, they are coming here to settle, to stay, and eventually to dominate and control.
